KENYA NATIONAL PARKS AND RESERVES

MASAI MARA GAME RESERVE

An extension of the Serengeti in Tanzania, the Mara is considered Kenya's leading Game Reserve. Its 700 sq. miles of undulating hills and rolling grasslands support a wildlife spectacular all year round. The Mara is host to large prides of Lion, dominated by black-maned males, Cheetah, Leopard, Elephant and herds of Cape Buffalo by the hundreds. You can also see a regular cast of Hyena, Gazelle, Impala, Masai Giraffe, Zebra, Wildebeest along with large Crocodile and Hippo in the Mara River. It is also one of the few places you can still see Black Rhino. Late June to early October is the yearly migration from the Serengeti. There is an unbelievable massing of thousands of Wildebeest, Zebra and Gazelle along with other migrating antelope. You can get a birds-eye view of it all with an optional hot air balloon ride.

LAKE NAKURU NATIONAL PARK

Just 93 miles northwest of Nairobi is Lake Nakuru, a soda lake famous for its seasonal gatherings of Lesser and Greater Flamingoes by the millions. The park life includes Leopard, Hyena, Hippo, Zebra, Lion, Cape Buffalo, Waterbuck, Reedbuck, various gazelles and the rare Rothschild's Giraffe. It is also a Rhino sanctuary and one of the only places in East Africa you can see White Rhinos.

AMBOSELI NATIONAL PARK

Beneath Mt. Kilimanjaro (19,342 ft.), Africa's highest mountain, is the most visited of Kenya's National Parks, Amboseli. About a four hour drive from Nairobi or Mombasa on the Coast, it is in the heart of Masailand where the tribesmen still graze their cattle alongside the wildlife. The land is characterized by scrub and fragile saline grasses. The melting snows of Mt. Kilimanjaro feed rivers and springs that supply water to the park swamps. This lifeline for the mammals attracts large numbers of Elephant, Cape Buffalo, Masai Giraffe and herds of Zebra, Antelope and Gazelle. Lion, Hyena, Leopard and Cheetah are also found here. The bird life is phenomenal with over 400 indigenous and migratory species.
